35 MDL Docket No. 06-01791-VRW

36 BREADY PLAINTIFFS' OPPOSITION
TO UNITED STATES' MOTION TO INTERVENE

1 Plaintiffs Christopher Bready, et al. (hereinafter “Plaintiffs” or the “Bready
2 Plaintiffs”), by and through undersigned counsel, do hereby oppose the United States
3 Government’s (“USG” or the “Government”) Motion to Intervene (the “Motion”) in this 4 matter, and state as following:

5 The Government’s Motion should be denied because it is not timely, USG has 6 failed to demonstrate a significant, direct, and legally protectable interest in the Bready
7 suit, and Defendant Verizon Maryland, Inc., adequately represents USG’s interests in the 8 suit.

9 1. THE MOTION TO INTERVENE IS NOT TIMELY

10 The United States Government’s (“USG”) Motion to Intervene is not ripe, and 11 therefore untimely, because whether this Court has subject matter jurisdiction over the 12 Bready action has not yet been determined. A district court may not consider a motion to 13 intervene before determining whether it has subject matter jurisdiction over a removed 14 case. Vang v. Healy, 804 F. Supp. 79, 83 (E.D. Cal. 1992). The reason is simple: the 15 federal courts are courts of limited jurisdiction, whose removal jurisdiction is derived
16 solely from Congressional authorization. Libhart v. Santa Monica Dairy Co., 592 F.2d
17 1062, 1064 (9th Cir. 1979); Vang, 804 F. Supp. at 81 (E.D. Cal. 1992). Thus, prior to a 18 determination of whether subject matter exists, a court may not consider a motion to 19 intervene on the theory that granting intervention will then confer jurisdiction. Vang, 804
20 F. Supp. at 83; see Libhart, 592 F.2d at 1066 (district court lacked jurisdiction to grant 21 motion to amend complaint to add federal claim because it lacked jurisdiction over case
22 as removed). USG’s Motion is therefore untimely, premature and unwarranted.

23 2. USG HAS NOT DEMONSTRATED ANY DIRECT AND “LEGALLY
24 PROTECTABLE INTEREST” IN THE BREADY SUIT

2 The USG has no “legally protectable interest” in the Bready suit, which is a civil 3 suit seeking statutory damages and other relief against a corporation for violations of 4 Maryland law. Rule 24(a)(2) requires that the party seeking intervention demonstrate “a 5 direct, significant legally protectable interest in the property or transaction subject to the 6 action.” Southwest Ctr. for Biological Diversity v. Berg, 268 F.3d 810, 817 (9th Cir.
7 2001); Wade v. Goldschmidt, 673 F.2d 182 (7th Cir. 1982). Although USG identifies its 8 interest in intervention primarily by identifying its intentions upon intervention, e.g., to 9 assert the “state secrets privilege, see Mot. at 6, this is not its “legally protectable 10 interest” in intervention. The real interest USG seeks to protect through intervention is to 11 continue its “Terrorist Surveillance Program,” in order to “detect and prevent another 12 catastrophic terrorist attack on the United States.” Mot. at 3.

13 However, this interest is insufficient to justify intervention in the Bready suit.
14 USG’s statement regarding its “Terrorist Surveillance Program” is that the program only 15 intercepts communications where one party to the communication is “a member of al
16 Qaeda, affiliated with al Qaeda, or a member of an organization affiliated with al Qaeda.”
17 Id. at 3. The communications at issue in the Bready suit are Maryland communications 18 made for legal residential or business purposes, not in any way associated with terrorism.
19 Thus, their communications do not fall within the interests identified by USG in its 20 Motion.

21 Plaintiffs note that Verizon and would-be intervenor USG have offered no
22 allegations that the “Terrorist Surveillance Program” was authorized under Maryland 23 law. Therefore, to the extent that USG seeks to intervene related to what appears to be 24 unauthorized, and hence illegal, disclosures and interceptions of communications

1 disallowed under Maryland law, it is questionable whether their interest qualifies as a
2 “legally protectable interest.” Stotts v. Memphis Fire Dept., 679 F.2d 579, 582 (5th Cir.
3 1982), cert. denied, 459 U.S. 969 (1982) (holding that there can be “no legally cognizable
4 interest” in practices that “presumptively could only occur as the result of” illegal
5 conduct); see also In re Grand Jury Subpoena Duces Tecum, 112 F.3d 910, 919 (8th Cir.
6 1997) (executive privileges can be waived when confronted with the “need for production 7 of relevant evidence” when “specific and central” to the adjudication of illegal acts).

8 To the extent that USG has legitimate and legally protectable interests in the 9 Bready transactions, those interest are indirect and contingent in nature. Indirect and 10 contingent interests are insufficient to justify intervention under Rule 24(a)(2).
11 Washington Elec. Coop., Inc. v. Massachusetts Mun. Wholesale Elec. Co., 922 F.2d 92, 12 97 (2d Cir. 1990) (stating that “[a]n interest that is remote from the subject matter of the 13 proceeding, or that is contingent upon the occurrence of a sequence of events before it 14 becomes colorable, will not satisfy the rule.”). If Defendant Verizon’s conduct is 15 determined to have violated the Maryland statutes identified in the Complaint, e.g., 16 Maryland Code Annotated Title 10, Subtitles 4, 4A, and 4B, Verizon will face fines for 17 that non-compliance. This does not affect the “Terrorist Surveillance Program,” unless 18 Verizon refuses further participation (in which case USG could simply indemnify 19 Verizon), or USG is not able to obtain authorization for continuing the program, as 20 provided for by Maryland law, see, e.g., Maryland Code, Courts and Judicial 21 Proceedings, § 10-402(d)(2)(i) (stating that disclosure of communications is lawful “[a]s 22 otherwise authorized by federal or State law.”).

1 If USG seeks to prevent injunctive relief that may be issued against its “Terrorist
2 Surveillance Program,” then that interest, in and of itself, does not justify any more than a 3 limited intervention in the Bready suit. Limited intervention is appropriate when the 4 interests of the intervenor are discrete and limited in nature. Howard v. McLucas, 782
5 F.2d 956, 962 (11th Cir.1986) (allowing non-minority employees to intervene for the 6 limited purpose of challenging a promotional remedy, but not to contest the existence of 7 past discrimination); Bradley v. Milliken, 620 F.2d 1141, 1142 (6th Cir.1980) (allowing 8 representative of minority community to intervene for the limited purpose of presenting 9 evidence on question of segregation); Harris v. Pernsley, 820 F.2d 592, 599 (3rd Cir.
10 1987) (discussing limited intervention). Limited intervention, which is appropriate 11 should this Court determine that USG has a protectable interest related to injunctive 12 relief, is in stark contrast to USG’s stated intention to intervene for the purpose of 13 completely eliminating the Bready Plaintiffs’ valid claims for statutory damages against 14 Verizon Maryland, Inc.

15 3. VERIZON HAS ASSERTED A MYRIAD OF PREEMPTION AND 16 AUTHORIZATION DEFENSES, DEMONSTRATING THAT USG’S
17 INTEREST ARE ADEQUATELY REPRESENTED BY THE DEFENDANT

19 USG’s argument regarding the adequacy of the representation of its interests in 20 the Bready suit, like those related to the other prongs of the intervention test, does not 21 pass the required threshold justifying intervention. As demonstrated by Verizon’s recent 22 Motion to Dismiss the Bready action (Dkts. 270 and 271), Defendant Verizon has raised 23 a myriad of defenses seeking to establish federal preeminence over the subject matter of 24 the suit, including, inter alia, stating that “constitutional field preemption,” preemption 25 over state laws that regulate the activities of the Executive Branch, and preemption of

1 federal statutory law over any claims related to state-law regulation of records; these 2 assertions are in addition to their previous assertion of executive authorization and state
3 secrets privilege in the Bready matter. See generally, Def. Verizon's Memo. in Support
4 of Mot. to Dismiss (Dkt. 271). While the Bready Plaintiffs challenge those defenses, 5 Verizon Maryland has zealously attempted to protect the federal preemption interests that 6 align with USG's interest in continuing the Terrorist Surveillance Program, therefore, 7 there is no need to add them as a party to this matter.

8 4. CONCLUSION

9 For the foregoing reasons, USG's Motion should be denied.
